

ARRL Field Organization Structure

Local and regional operational activities of ARRL are carried out through its field organization. ARRL divides the United States and its territories into 71 administrative sections. Many sections are comprised of a single state, but a few of the larger states, such as Texas and California, are divided into two more sections.

The membership in each section elects a Section Manager (SM) once every two years.

The SM is responsible for managing the Field Organization programs in their section.

Through coordinators, the SM recruits ARRL volunteers to staff various crucial program areas.

Learn more about Field Organization positions by visiting the ARRL website:

<http://www.arrl.org/field-organization>